Friendly visit from Japan to Faculty of Medicine and Health Science UMY

Japan, a country renowned for its innovative and world-class healthcare systems. From cutting-edge robotics and AI-driven solutions to exceptional medical care and disease management, Japan's unyielding pursuit of progress continuously establishes new standards in this health industry.

On July 24, the Faculty of Medicine and Health Science UMY welcomed warmly a group of researchers from Japan at PKU Gamping Hospital. Assigned by the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), the group consisted of several members, including the CEO and team leader from Torishige Sangyo, professors from Oita University, a representative from Iyo Bank, a representative from Koei Research and Consulting, and one interpreter as well

Professors from the Faculty of Medicine and Health Science of UMY along with the Head of the Cooperation and International Affairs of UMY and Director of Education, Research, and Quality of PKU Gamping Hospital were present to provide a brief overview about UMY and PKU Gamping Hospital.

There were also a number of conversations done regarding the prospect of working together in the near future. According to a representative from UMY, there is a high chance that Torishige Sangyo's products will be purchased for educational purposes in the coming days.

In addition to that, the possibility of collaborative study on medicine and health science being conducted by Oita University and UMY gets positive responses from both institutions. Following an engaging discussion, the JICA representative was given the opportunity to take a quick tour of the PKU Gamping Hospital in order to have a better understanding of the hospital's management.

The JICA representative also visited UMY Campus, where they continued their conversation with other professors and staff members from the Faculty of Medicine and Health Science UMY. In light of the favorable circumstances, UMY anticipated that the discussions would lead to the formation of a fruitful partnership. UMY further stated that they will always be open to any potential partnership.
